The 17 Walgreens, councilman, pulling out of the Bay Area because they can't make any money because you, you, can walk in and steal whatever you want and it's no longer a crime so Walgreens is like ,“we're out”.

Prosecutors in San Francisco and in many other places throughout the state of California for example, but not just there, no longer charge shoplifters, so people steal whatever they want.

The store is closing due to what local reports are calling a spree of rampant shoplifting.

And look at this, just 15 minutes after an Inside Edition crew showed up at the drugstore, we found this guy jumping over the front counter, taking an air bed and leaving the store on his scooter, no questions asked, no one's stopping him.

He just came in with a suitcase. That's crazy? Every day they just come in with suitcases? Yeah.
